

Erratum: The occasional maternal cardiac arrest

In the article titled The occasional maternal cardiac arrest, published on pages 128-33, Issue 3, Volume 26 in Canadian Journal of Rural Medicine^[1], the term HYPERmagnesaemia was misspelled as Hypomagnesaemia on page 130, Table 2, left column, 2nd row of content, under table column heading Aetiology.

The correct word should be read as HYPERmagnesaemia

REFERENCE

1. Jakubow AN. The occasional maternal cardiac arrest. Can J Rural Med 2021;26:128-33.

DOI:

10.4103/1203-7796.327586

Rural Medicine Careers / Classified and Recruitment Ads

Family Medicine in Beautiful Nisga'a Valley, BC

Family Physicians needed to provide primary and urgent care for a population of 3,500 in four communities across the traditional Nisga'a Territory. A team of three physicians works together to provide full-scope services (excluding obstetrics) in concert with other services such as home care, public health, and mental wellness and addictions. The Health and Wellness Centers are staffed with full-time RNs who take first call after hours. Soaring mountains, picturesque fjords, dramatic lava beds, natural hot springs, and thriving rivers offer outstanding recreation year-round. Excellent remuneration. Contact Jeremy Penner at md@nisgahealth.bc.ca.

Master of Medical Studies programme

Want to gain the expertise that would allow you to do research to improve the health of all people in Northern, rural and remote communities? Learn how through NOSM's Master of Medical Studies programme. <https://www.nosm.ca/mms>

Would you like to place an advertisement in the next CJRM?

Add a splash of colour and be seen with a colour ad.
Full-colour - start at $500. Plain text - start at $120.

Discount for SRPC Members and multi placement ads.

Details are available online. www.srpc.ca/cjrm